Our country has made the cause a national effort, using all the possible resources to help poor people... It would be really hard to believe China could do so much, and to such an extent, if I hadn’t personally participated in it.

Leung On-seu, 29, a Hong Kong entrepreneur.